Diverse facts

- There are almost 61 million people living in the United Kingdom, slightly more women than men.
- Nearly 31 million of us are working or actively looking for work (most of the rest are under 16 or are retired).
- Around 3.5 million disabled people are in employment – around one in eight of all working age people in employment.
- 45% of the UK population identify themselves as having no religious belief (though they may hold non-religious beliefs, such as Humanism). 47.5% of people say they are Christian, while 3.3% are Muslim, 1.4% Hindu, 0.5% Jewish, 0.2% Sikh, 0.2% Buddhist and 1.4% other non-Christian religions.
- HM Treasury Actuaries estimate that 6% of people are attracted to people of the same sex (lesbian women and gay men) or both the same and opposite sex (bisexual people)

We are indeed a diverse population
